

UN CAFE PARA TI, UN
MOMENTO PARA LOS DOS

GROUP 3

STRATEGIC CONTEXT

Context

- Category leader for 20+ years with sustained growth
- Coffee shop category growing fast (+7.5% CAGR)
- Growth mainly driven by store openings (+9%)

The Problem

- Starbucks Spain growth relies on opening new stores
- Transactions per store not increasing
- Signals weakening consumer engagement and rising competition

What must Change

- Shift focus from store openings to store productivity
 - Increase visit frequency
 - Increase penetration

A Starbucks barista wearing a green apron with the Starbucks logo on the chest. The barista is standing behind a counter, with their hands resting on a wooden tray. On the tray is a white Starbucks cup filled with coffee and a latte art design, and a golden-brown croissant. The background is a warm, slightly blurred interior of a Starbucks store.

Despierta con Starbucks®

CURRENTLY

- Targets +25 office workers in the morning
- Built for functional, routine coffee consumption
- Competes in a market where 80% happens in low-cost cafés
- 25% drink coffee after lunch (14h–16h) but not fully leveraged

OUR ADVICE

- Expand to a different segment
- Leverage a high-frequency segment: 70% drink coffee daily
- Shift from functional mornings to afternoon moments
- Own the merienda moment

Behavior

- Their week includes regular pick-ups and little moments together
- They want simple plans in places that feel easy and welcoming
- Reachable through WhatsApp, radio, and outdoor media

Needs

- Something special they can offer without too much effort
- A comfortable stop during the afternoon

Pain points

- Many outings feel tiring, repetitive, or expensive
- They want quality time, not just screen time or passive moments

“We don’t always know how to keep them entertained”
